Changes in Policy:

Luxembourg's MIPEx score dropped by 1 point due to the abolishment of the National Council for Foreigners and barriers for undocumented migrants in healthcare. Positive changes include easier labour market access for non-EU migrants and a government-backed universal health access project.

Labour Market Mobility | 41

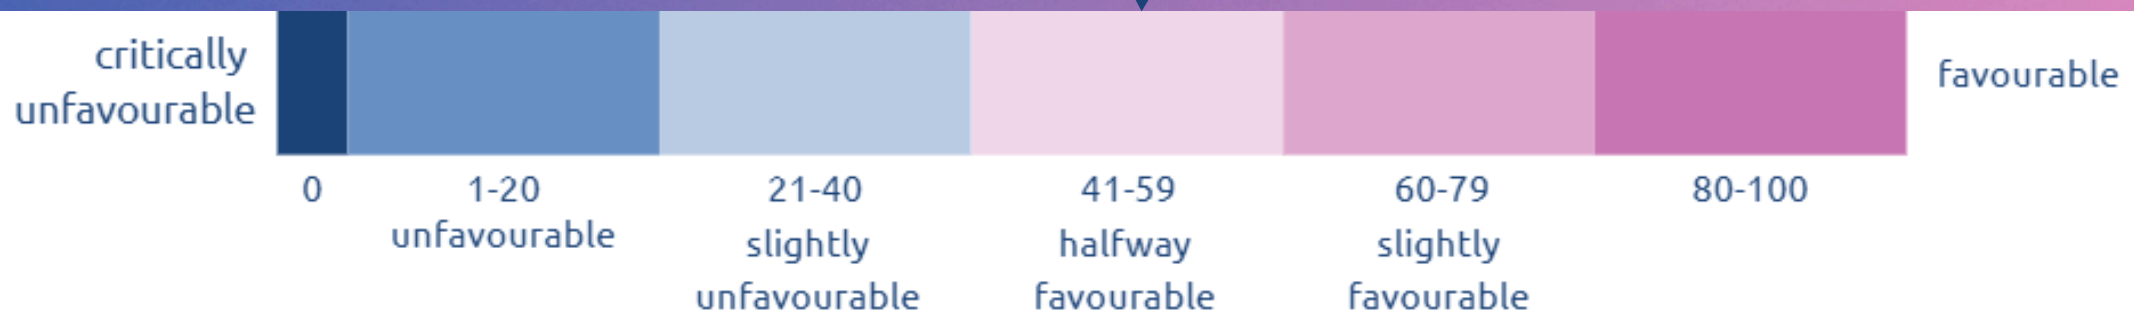

Hiring rules have improved for non-EU immigrants, but limited training and language support restrict job prospects compared to other EU countries.

Family Reunification | 52

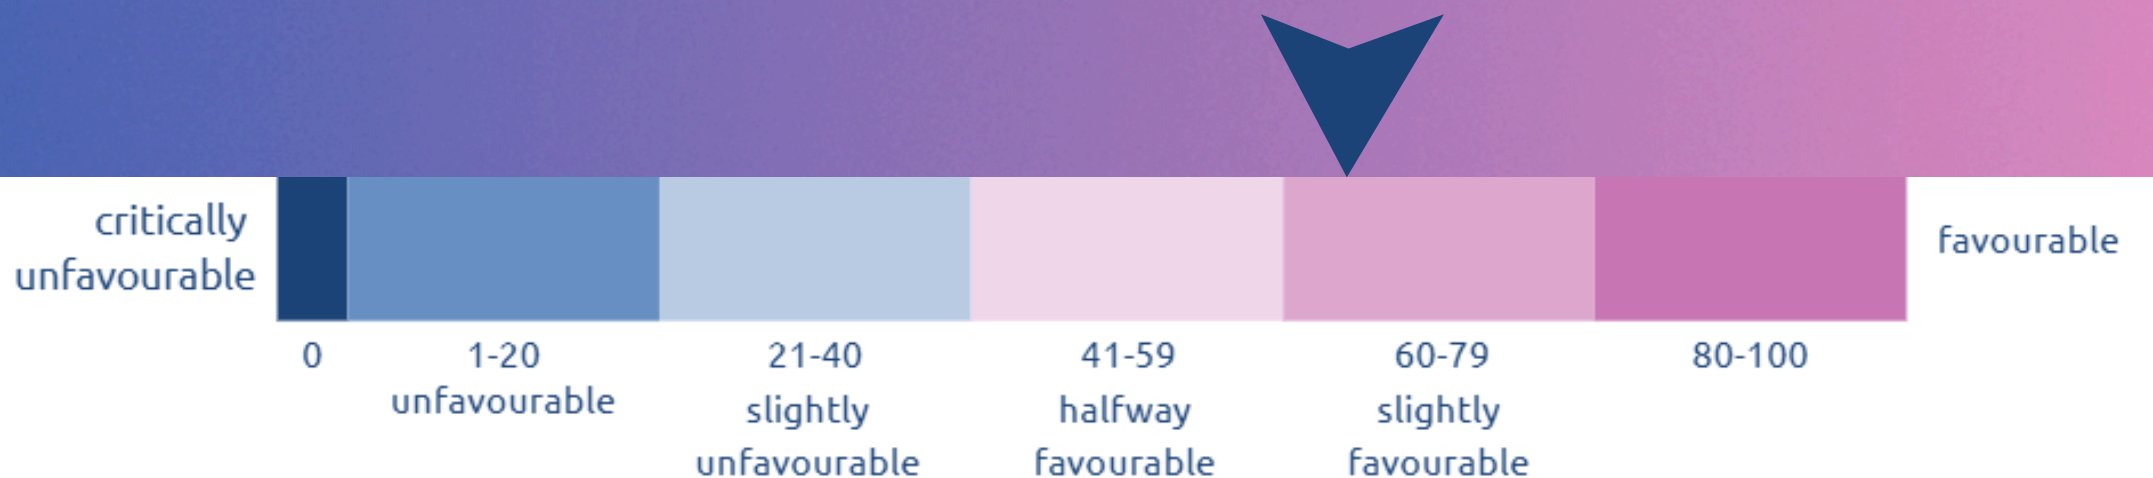

Policies remain unchanged and slightly family-friendly, but administrative obstacles and rights gaps persist for reuniting families.

Education | 64

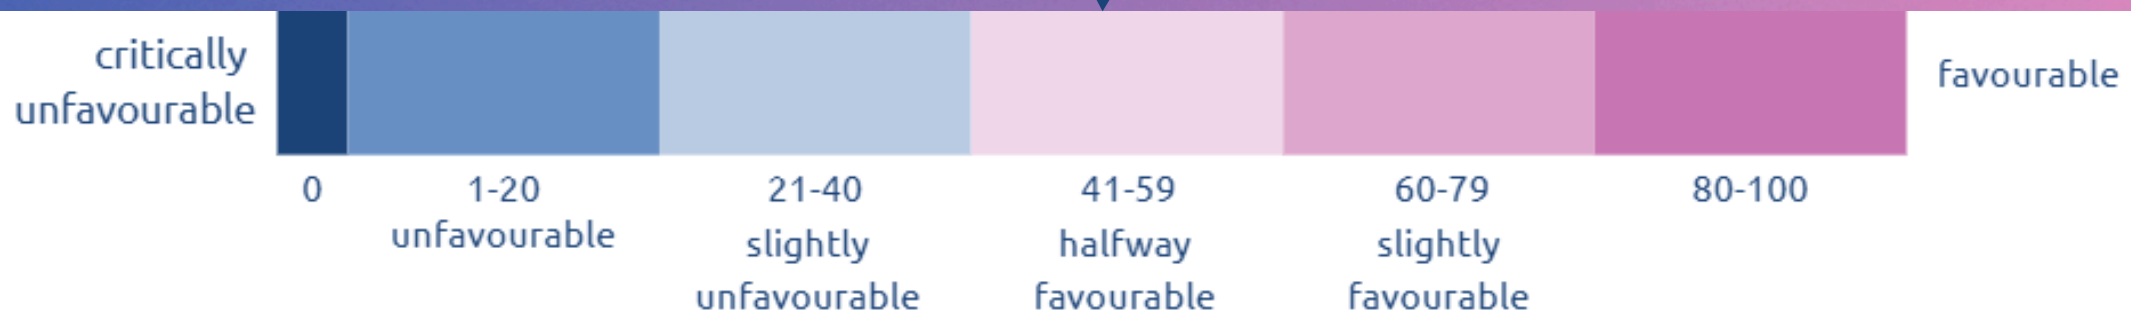

Luxembourg supports an intercultural approach and targets migrant pupils, but high student diversity presents ongoing challenges in ensuring equal opportunities and language access.

Health | 50

Inclusive services and a new Universal Health Access project help, but undocumented migrants still face access barriers, and immigrant participation in healthcare design is limited.

Political Participation | 65

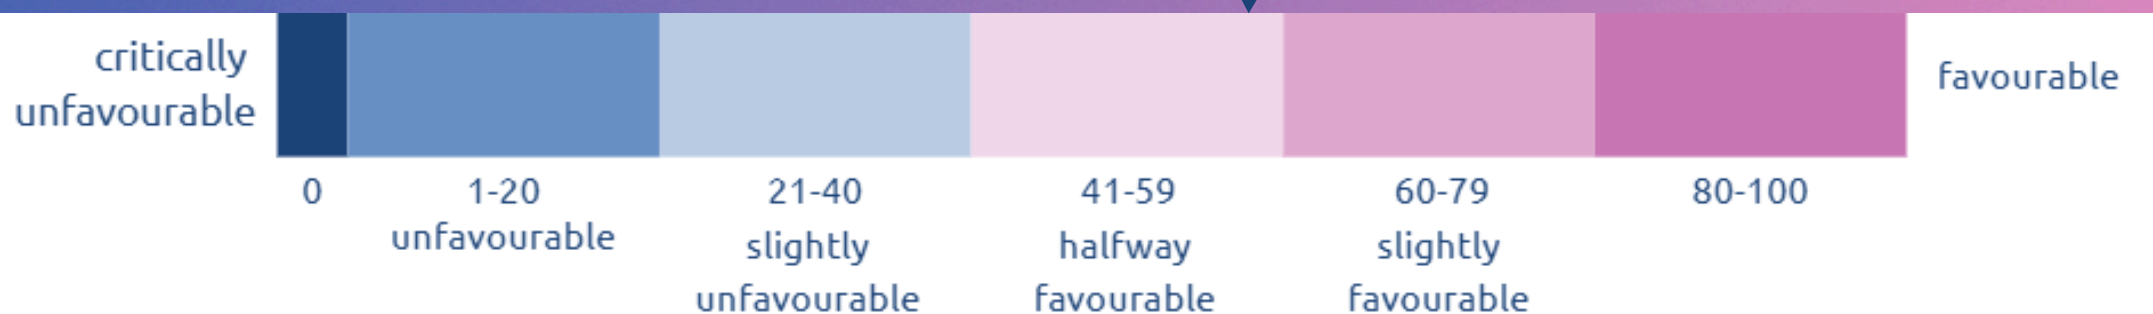

Luxembourg ranks among the EU's best in this area thanks to inclusive policies promoting immigrant access and participation. However, the 2023 removal of the CNE consultative body marked a setback for migrant political voice.

Permanent Residence | 58

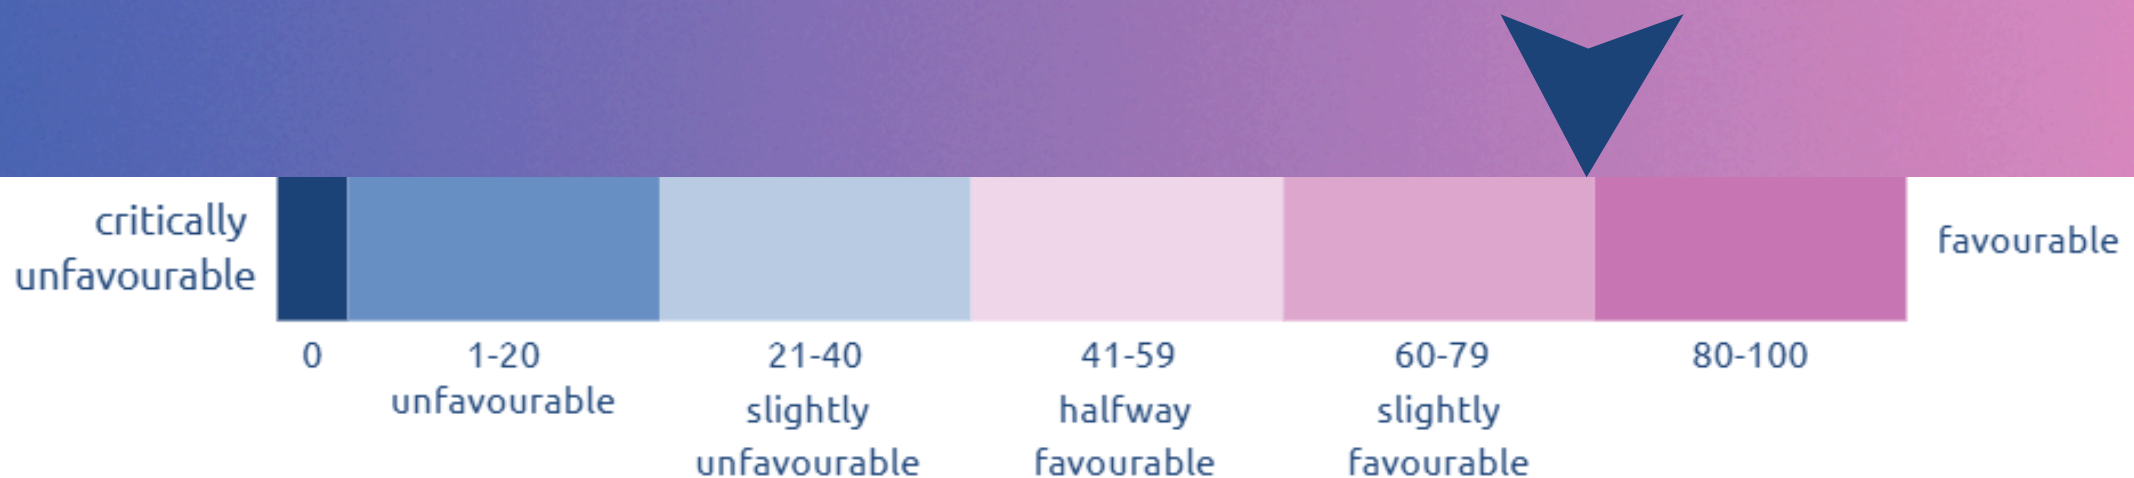

Paths to permanent residence are average but more complex than in neighbouring countries. Security of status remains limited for many.

Access to Nationality | 79

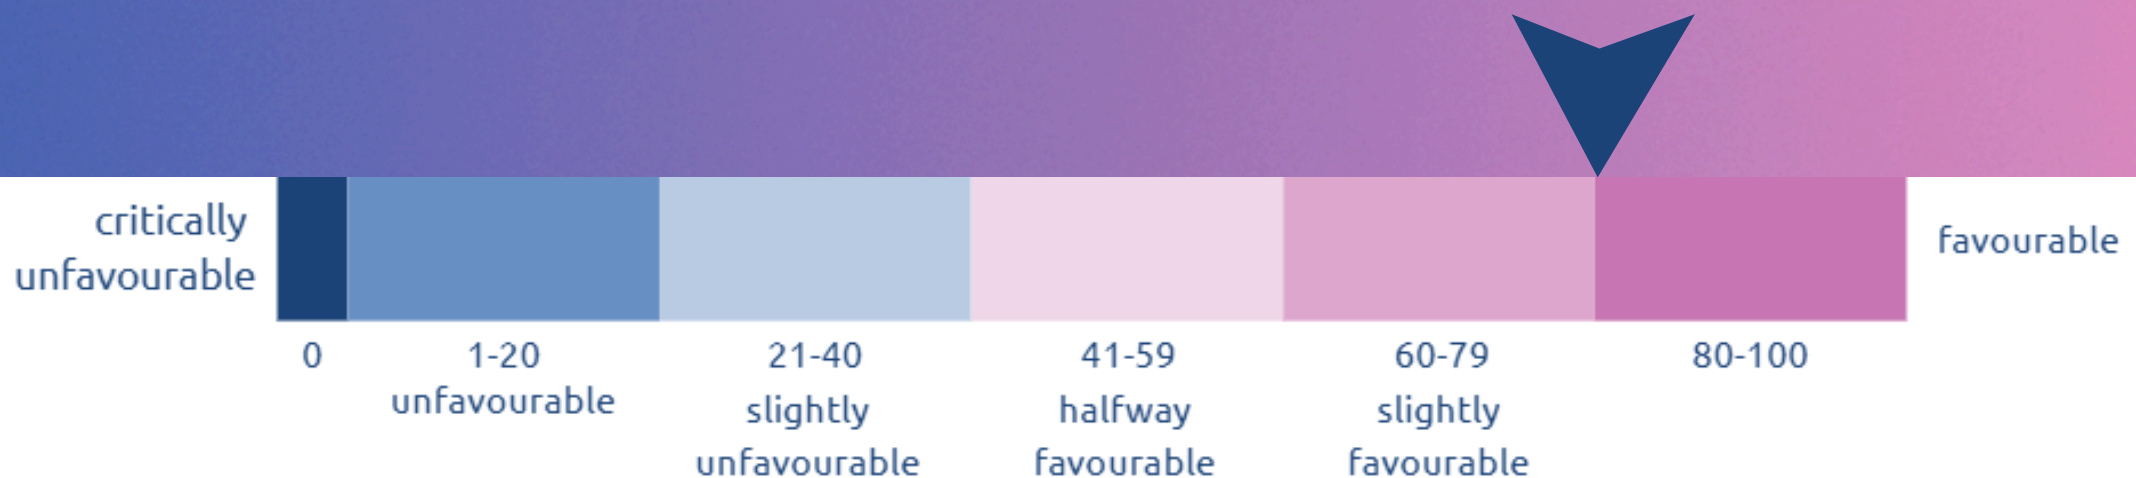

Dual nationality and access after five years for first-generation immigrants are strong points, but some procedural obstacles still exist.

Anti-discrimination | 80

Strong legal protections exist for all residents, and laws have improved since 2017. However, more awareness-raising and practical tools for implementation are needed.

Conclusions & Recommendations:

Integration in Luxembourg is slightly favourable (MIPEx score: 61). While basic rights are well protected, long-term security and equal opportunities remain limited. Political participation, education, and labour equality need stronger policy support to close persistent integration gaps.
